

MISSION STATEMENT OF THE TRAINING UNIT

The Fraunhofer Institute for Cell Therapy and Immunology (IZI) offers continuing education in the field of biotechnology, immunology and cell therapy.

Participants in our training courses receive the best possible support for their professional development in various seminars. With our further education measures, we also enable participants from other sectors to gain professional perspectives in our focus sectors. We act in a customer-oriented manner, support and supervise our participants individually and continuously throughout the entire duration of the Fraunhofer IZI's training program in order to ensure sustainable learning success.

We are committed to gender equality and fair access to education for participants regardless of denominational, social or cultural background, and we attach importance to the compatibility of family and career.

Thanks to our reputation and acceptance in the industry, as well as strong networking with partners and companies, we increase the chances of sustainable integration of our participants in this constantly growing labor market. For the implementation of the training programs, we use experienced lecturers and provide them and the participants with interdisciplinary, competent staff who are constantly training themselves. In this way, we guarantee a didactically prepared, practice-oriented training program that is geared to the current requirements of the labor market. To this end, we closely involve our partner companies in the conception and implementation.

Our quality assurance system provides us with concrete, measurable results for evaluating the achievement of our objectives. In this way, we ensure a basis for the continuous improvement and optimization of our training offering in the interests of our customers, partners and employees.
